>

> I totally object to the application for a licence to sell/supply alcohol and play music at the premises of Cocina Familiar, 2 Edinburgh Court, Wingerworth, S42 6SH. There are many reasons for this objection:

>

> Wingerworth is a densely populated residential village, many of the residents are retired and elderly; music and drinking late in the evening, so close to houses, would ruin the tranquility of the village.

>

> The site is too close to houses and there are residential flats above the property, these residents' evenings would be ruined and the value of properties diminished.

>

> The playing of music until 23.00 would destroy the sleep and peace of the local residents. Someone was playing music late last night and it was not acceptable.

>

> The restaurant site is very small and can only contain, roughly, 2 tables inside which would lead to the doors being open and people sitting, eating and drinking on the pavement thus obstructing the pathway (which is already happening and means that residents heading for the shops have to walk in the car park rather than the pedestrian path). If this were the case in the evening, and alcohol was being consumed, this could, potentially, be intimidating for elderly residents trying to access the local shops.

>

> Drinking, loud music and potential loud/drunken behaviour in the middle of this quiet village (the venue is too small to contain more than a few people inside so would inevitably end up outside on the path and in the car park) would ruin the lives of all local residents.

> Yours faithfully
